- 1. Research: We have recently (2001) completed a nationwide anemia prevalence study. Information on some important socio-economic parameters and short term morbidity statistics were also collected. Anthropometric measurements of height, weight and mid upper arm circumference (from the same subjects) were obtained. A total of 5000 people of different age and sex groups from 16 statistically selected locations of the country were included in the study. The data is currently under analysis and should be published in the upcoming months.
